Math:

This week we will learn about addition and subtraction patterns, how to add and subtract mentally and then how to estimate sums and differences.

Reading:

This week our story is "Year of the Rat". We will set a purpose, discuss the genre, complete discussion questions and then take a comprehension quiz.

Science:

We will wrap up "How can we test if a kick is like other collisions" and then move onto "How and why does the motion of two ball changes after a collision".

Writing:

We are working through our personal narratives by finishing the draft, editing and moving into peer proofreading.

Spelling:

Our spelling words this week prove to be a little difficult. They are homophones. The word part "phones" means hear so these words sound the same but are spelled differently. We will what each word means and how to distinguish between the words and decoding, blend and read, fluency and reading rate and more.

Social Studies:

We will begin with "Innovation" move on to "Aqueducts" and wrap up the week with "Roman roads".

Grammar:

We will work on how to write complete sentences and then review sentence fragments and run on sentences. This will help in our reading and writing as well.

Penmanship:

We will work on under-curve letters f, k, r, s, j and p.

Have a great week!

Homecoming

After much debate and going back and forth between what board game we wanted, we finally chose one only to find another class chose it as well. We then moved to our second choice which is Scrabble. I am thinking we will each have a letter spelling out the word victory. Our theme is "MCM will spell out a victory!" I will print out the letters and laminate each of them so they are more durable and then attach with yarn.

Does anyone have a wagon we can pull in the parade to hold extra supplies or materials we need or fall apart? We look forward to a great homecoming parade and want MCM to spell out a victory!
